Accelelevation LLC is pleased to announce the acquisition of a new business. Item West, located in Salt Lake City, UT, is an aluminum extrusion and component company with a strong focus on custom engineered solutions within the manufacturing industry. From Lean Production, Safety and Ergonomics, to Linear Automation, they innovate products that increase efficiency and aesthetics on the manufacturing floor. Some of the world's top manufacturers in the electric vehicle automotive including Tesla, Lucid and Rivian, as well as leading aerospace and medical manufacturers, have chosen to partner with Item to create a more streamlined production process.

Item West also launched an innovative, one-of-a kind program for advanced manufacturers called Skylab. Skylab is an onsite material management and engineering consignment program that provides real time access to material and engineering services which helps to prevent any interruptions in workflow. It allows the customer to place an order and receive the engineered solution at the needed work cell with hours. Skylab is currently in operation at multiple Telsa facilities, with additional locations planned for launch this year.

Accelelevation President, Michael Rubiera, said, "We are thrilled to welcome Item West to the Accelelevation portfolio of innovative companies. We have been extremely impressed by their scope of work and commitment to their customers. We will be rebranding it as Skylab Manufacturing and look forward to building on this innovative platform across a diverse range of manufacturers."
